

Boston Computer Society

The Boston Computer Society dissolved in 1996 (read article). The many shareware disks they produced are still of use to hobbyists and users of earlier Macs, however, so we are attempting to catalog them here.

These files can be downloaded with any computer, but in order to access the 400k disk images you must be running Mac OS 7.x or earlier. Disk Copy 4.2, or a similar utility, is required to mount the images, as well as a utility such as Stuffit to expand the files. To download the images, it may be necessary to hold down the option key while clicking. Those without an early Macintosh can try running the programs in vMac.

Some disks are damaged. In this case, a stuffit archive of the salvagable files is included. The names of damaged disks are listed in italics. In the Stuffit files, folders are used as placeholders for the missing files. If anybody can provide images of the damaged disks it would be appreciated.

Thanks to Justin Mayrand for providing the original disks.
